ScriptBlocker is a straightforward tool that can disable the Windows Script Host, HTML application, PowerShell and CommandPrompt. This way, ransomware agents will not be successful in infecting your PC using these environments. The program is lightweight and doesn't require installation. It can be stored on a USB flash drive in order to fire it up on any computer and swiftly deactivate these Windows features. On the other hand, it cannot work unless you have administrative rights. Disables some Windows features prone to vulnerabilities The main app window shows all options put at your disposal. All you have to do is check the boxes of the Windows features you want to disable. It's not necessary to click buttons for confirm changes since these are immediately reflected throughout the PC. For instance, you can check the "Disable Command Prompt" box and then run cmd.exe to see if it really worked. This should open a console window that says command prompt was disabled by your administrator. To revert settings and return everything to normal, you just have to clear the ticked boxes. Once again, modifications are automatically applied to the PC, so there's no need to restart it or perform additional actions. Easy-to-use script blocker Everything worked as expected on Windows 10 in our tests. The software utility disabled system tools instantly and had minimum impact on the computer's performance. Unless this isn't clear by now, Script

Field of the Invention The present invention relates to the preparation of aqueous emulsion-forming compositions. More particularly, the present invention is directed to the preparation of aqueous inorganic emulsion-forming compositions, which are particularly effective as thickening agents for viscous fluids and have improved emulsification properties.

2. Description of the Prior Art It is known to prepare aqueous inorganic emulsion-forming compositions for use in the thickening of a variety of aqueous solutions or emulsions. Such compositions are typically prepared by first pre-mixing an aqueous inorganic hydrous oxide solution with a dispersing agent therefor, and then diluting the pre-mixed solution to form the inorganic emulsion-forming composition. The pre-mixing step involves introducing the hydrous oxide solution into an emulsion-forming composition comprising a dispersing agent and a diluent, thereby forming a primary dispersion, and then mechanically agitating the primary dispersion to form a secondary dispersion. Such known emulsion-forming compositions are disclosed in, for example, U.S. Pat. No. 3,835,027, issued Sept. 10, 1974, to G. A. Barnett; U.S. Pat. No. 3,856,935, issued Dec. 24, 1974,

to J. H. Stambaugh; U.S. Pat. No. 4,077,992, issued Mar. 7, 1978, to C. A. M. Buchanan; U.S. Pat. No. 4,094,835, issued June 13, 1978, to R. A. Caplan et al; and U.S. Pat. No. 4,125,462, issued Nov. 14, 1978, to W. E. Breckenridge et al. Such known aqueous inorganic emulsion-forming compositions are generally characterized as aqueous inorganic emulsions, and are considered relatively unstable as their dispersions have a propensity to rapidly gel, agglomerate,
